

Confirmed in American festival Maryland Deathfest With the newly released "Wholly Wicked," the legendary band Vulcano, one of the pillars of extreme Metal, announces its participation in the 12th edition of the Maryland Deathfest festival in May 2015 in the city of Baltimore in the United States. After twelve years and over 400 bands representing over 25 countries, the Maryland Deathfest has become one of the most important international festivals. The concept of the festival is simple: to bring to the United States the best and most extreme bands the underground has to offer. Not conform to trends, or gender restrictions, Maryland Deathfest is a showcase of extreme music, new and old representatives.

With an emphasis on diversity, the festival brings together the best Death Metal, Grindcore, Doom, Thrash, Black Metal and experimental bands from around the world. With bands from across the U.S. and Canada, exclusive and rare appearances of bands in Europe, Australia and Japan, the diversity of programming is only surpassed by the diversity of rabid fans, who annually travel from around the world for a weekend of fun and music.

Since the start of the Maryland Deathfest in 2003, organizers Ryan and Evan festival continue to strive to bring together some of the most legendary bands of the scene and some of the most important bands in the underground.
