

Hey, does the name BLEEDING ART from the city of Przemyśl ring any bell? No?

No worries, you can easily correct this situation. So, This is a compilation cd featuring the band's demo 1997 stuff – Moja Dusza and demo 2000 – In the Eternal Garden of Death.

Also, there are four bonus tracks (live in Radymno). Moja Dusza are four songs sung in Polish. Does this song W Mroku Gwiazd ring a bell?

Yes, this is Mistrz Micinski all over. In short, this demo is amazingly performed old-school death metal with very good solos.

Plenty of power and imaginativeness in this one. You can tell how technically good the musicians were at that time. Man, when I listen to this cd I am asking myself why these demos haven't been re-released much earlier.

It took a Japanese label to re-release this excellent band's music!

In the Eternal Garden of Death is their second demo, recorded 3 years later. Interestingly, this stuff is different as BLEEDING ART is now exploring black metal.

Two songs are sung in Polish and two in English. I prefer the English one - W otchłani ludzkich pragnień. The solos sound almost...romantic(!) and the keyboard parts don't bother at all...since they are skilfully interwoven with the rest. Well thought-over and well-performed, indeed. Well, I can only say these demos do hold up after all those years. Yes,
