What I see in my mind`s eye is an old, forgotten graveyard; the maze of old, painfully twisted rotted branches and boughs which are dimming crumbling graves, from which oozes the cadaverous venom of putrefaction; this is where corpses of skinned apparitions crawl from and stroll like some mares who want to feed on fear among the graves of the damned. The trees there are soothing, a man gets confused by the melody of music and poisons the triumph of putrefaction. Such thoughts were crossing my mind when I listened to The Siege of Angband. It is weird, very obscure and totally possessed black metal in the evil, frantically unnatural and primordial vein. This music is also totally addictive, I have been listening to this stuff for some days now and I still feel how hypnotical it is. The atmosphere is amazing, weighty; the sound dirty and blends with some short outbursts of aggression and something morbid, like from out of this world. You can sense something unsettling, something fascinating in this music. On understanding you like CULTES DES GHOULES, DEATH LIKE MASS or PLAGA, well SKALD OF MORGOTH can be your next choice.
