

I wasn't aware of this incoming storm...this cd was supposed to be reviewed with a pile of other cds and at some point, the right moment to do so came. Hell, this damn recording stunned me, all right! HELL'S CORONATION's second album: Unholy Blades is total mind rape! This release oozes with black tar to drown a listener in the immense abyss of madness; omnipotent darkness, like a cerecloth, embraces everything and everybody with some grim, dark and relentless atmosphere. These five tracks reek of power which is effectively able to evoke lenient areas of your mind, materializing what we can call your darkest nightmares. These sounds emanate with something out of this world. You can feel cadaveric stench breathed on your back. Something menacing, something grim; yet sad. When I close my eyes listening to this stuff, in my mind's eye I can see a funeral procession of nightmares; walking through a dense fog covering a necropolis. Wild gale is playing with cadavers' filthy clothes. The sky is torn by thunder again and again. Old, destroyed clothes reek of putrefaction. Crumbling graves, rotten sarcophaguses are embraced with omnipotent darkness covering the graveyard.

HELL'S CORONATION

music is very close to a what horror movie stands for. Can hypnotize a listener really easily. This is the black metal I love. Heck, been a while since I was so moved by music as I am now. Slow, pitch black tempos are blended with march like, filthy, crude and crass sound. The grim atmosphere smells of putrefaction and rot. This music is very simple with some keyboard pats here and there. It all covers us with the aura of mystery. This stuff is tainted with
