

Time after time, does unspeakable Evil appear from the filthiest sewers of Hell and infect, successfully, the world with its untreatable disease. This plague announces Antichrist shall be born again – He shall lead the march of the dead, bring black light and leave behind ruins of old temples, graveyards, putrefaction and rottenness. At the darkest night a beast is born. WITCHCRAFT is an unholy triple from Finland. Their music is simple and very intense – somewhere between early Beherit and Blasphemy with some classic death metal influences. Don't you expect any virtuosity here at all! But this stuff is abundant with emotions. This stuff can easily possess a listener. You can feel, in these sounds, true possession, servitude, the cult of Devil – who emanates with his omnipotent strength. The cannonade of perverse, malicious to the bone, sounds is oozing from loudspeakers like some pus from a rotting corpse. A pungent stench of rotting is leaking from the very first sounds of the Intro and, through all four tracks, accomplishing the final destruction of whatever you consider to be holy. LWS
